The river is not merely water. It is memory, migration, conflict, and civilization—flowing through continents, carving empires, and now confronting the limits of human mastery. In River and the Source, Margaret Ogola does not simply recount a story; she excavates the layered soul of one river—the Malava, a tributary of the Nile in East Africa—transforming it into a narrative vessel that carries the weight of colonial ambition, ecological collapse, cultural resilience, and the unrelenting struggle for sovereignty. This is not a chronicle of a waterway, but a profound meditation on how rivers shape—and are shaped by—the human condition. Ogola’s work emerges from a lineage of African literary and journalistic traditions that treat nature not as backdrop but as protagonist. Her narrative unfolds across decades, tracing the Malava from its headwaters in the highlands of western Kenya, through the contested plains of Uganda and South Sudan, to its confluence with the White Nile. Along this arc, she weaves together oral histories, colonial archives, hydrological data, and the testimonies of farmers, fishers, elders, and activists—each voice a stratum in the river’s sediment. The Malava, in her hands, becomes a palimpsest: layers of meaning inscribed by time, power, and survival. The origins of River and the Source are rooted in Ogola’s deep personal and professional engagement with East Africa’s ecological crises. A veteran investigative journalist with decades of field reporting from the Great Lakes region, Ogola brings more than reportage—she brings a
