Central to this analysis is the seminal work of Dr. Joel Spring, a leading scholar in education policy, curriculum, and institutional reform. Historical Evolution of American Education: Foundations and Institutional Architecture

The American education system emerged from a fragmented colonial legacy, where religious institutions and local parishes provided early schooling with minimal standardization. By the 19th century, Horace Mann's 1837 Massachusetts School Law marked a pivotal shift toward universal public education, establishing compulsory attendance and tax-funded common schools. This ethos—education as a civic good—became foundational. Over the 20th century, landmark legislation expanded access: the GI Bill (1944) democratized higher education, while the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (1965) injected federal funding to reduce disparities. The 1970s–1990s saw landmark Supreme Court rulings (e.g., Brown v. Board of Education, 1954) challenge segregation, though de facto inequities persisted. The 21st century introduced accountability via the No Child Left Behind Act (2001) and its successor, the Every Student Succeeds Act (2015), which recalibrated federal influence toward state-led, data-driven reform. At the core of Spring's analysis is

International Assessments: The role of rankings and standardized testing in shaping national policies.
